Country and location: India New Delhi 110065

Employer: Micro Insurance Academy Sarvajan Unnati Bodhini Charitable Trust

The background

The Micro Insurance Academy (MIA) was established in 2007 as a service provider for NGOs, municipalities and communities in the area of micro insurances. It has since grown quickly and now employs a staff of 35 who offer services in the areas of research and training and in an advisory capacity. MIA attaches great value to awareness-raising and capacity building among local users of insurance services. The priority area so far has been the field of micro health insurance. Here MIA cooperates with various grassroots organisations, research institutions and international donors. The academy has become one of India's most important service providers in the field of micro insurances and has displayed continued dynamic growth ever since it was set up. MIA is now seeking to develop its service capacities further with the support of an expert.

Your tasks

You will strengthen MIA's capacities for providing a large bandwidth of services in the micro insurance sector, extending beyond the present priority area of health. Your tasks include: pricing for insurance packages on the basis of restricted information, especially on the basis of time series analysis; developing and pricing reinsurance systems for the micro insurance programmes of MIA; developing new business areas, including outside the priority area of health; and developing a risk monitoring mechanism for micro insurance programmes.

Your profile

You are an actuary or have a comparable qualification.

Your professional background includes experience in pricing health insurances, drafting and pricing reinsurance contracts and time series analysis. Knowledge in the areas of simulations of animal husbandry, life and index insurances as well as experience in risk analysis and creation of reserves would be welcome. You are creative, can integrate well in an intercultural team and have a very good command of written and spoken English.

The terms

Your contract of employment with MIA will be for two years initially, on standard local terms. An extension of the contract is possible. You are answerable to the local employer on job-specific and labour law matters. CIM pays a monthly salary top-up and additional social benefits, resulting in an attractive overall remuneration package.
