Is there a trade-off between employment and productivity?

The paper highlights some policy implications that follow from its empirical investigations. It suggests that it is not possible to provide a 'one-size-fits-all' set of policies as different countries face different social, cultural, institutional and historical conditions. The paper emphasizes the importance of investment in social infrastructure, education, health, and improved conditions of work as part of redistributive strategies.

COOPERATIVE ENTERPRISE

Tackling informality in e-waste management: The potential of cooperative enterprises

Electrical and electronic waste (e-waste) is currently the fastest growing waste stream, and it is hazardous, complex and costly to treat. Adequate e-waste recycling can contribute to an environmentally sustainable economy, but that requires immediate improvements in job quality and incomes.
