Migration in ASEAN in figures : The international labour migration statistics (ILMS) database in ASEAN

The ILMS database gathers all the official government data sources on international migrant workers' stocks and flows within the region, as well as on countries' nationals living or working abroad. The data are published as a 'special collection' on the ILO's central ILOSTAT Database portal a powerful research tool that will be used by policy-makers, researchers, academics and the ILO to influence policy implementation, monitoring, and improvement as well as to guide technical assistance.

Regional model competency standards: Garment work

Competency standards are a set of benchmarks that define the skills, knowledge, and attributes that people need to perform a work role. They are developed in consultation with industry, in order to ensure that they reflect the needs of the workplace. These standards are primarily used to develop and implement training, to assess the outcomes of training, and to assess the level of a person's existing skills and competencies.

Effectiveness of active labour market tools in conditional cash transfers programmes: evidence for Argentina

RESEARCH DEPARTMENT (ILO WORKING PAPER NO. 11)
Effectiveness of active labour market tools in Conditional Cash Transfers programmes: Evidence for Argentina

FOR LEAFLET WORKERS AND BUSINESS MANAGERS

The paper examines the impact of a programme implemented in Argentina to provide support in skills upgrading, vocational training, job-seeking and job placement to those eligible beneficiaries of the large conditional cash transfer programme Plan Jefes. Using data from the Permanent Household Survey, this article assesses the short-term effects of the programme on a number of labour market indicators.

From Pakistan to the Gulf region: An analysis of links between labour markets, skills and the migration cycle

Pakistani migrant workers can be found in almost all countries of the globe, most of them concentrate in a Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) country. An overwhelmingly large reliance on these countries for jobs (thus remittances) is a cause of concern for Pakistan due to the heightened vulnerability associated with having so many workers in a few places that are not immune to economic fluctuations.
