Human trafficking is becoming global problem and increasingly challenging to Thai Society. The Royal Government of Thailand has been putting much effort to prevent and to find solutions for this problem. The government issues revision of and brings improvement to legislations. The recent improvement of legislations can be observed from the Prevention and Suppression of Trafficking in Persons Act 2008 which enacted on 5 June 2008. The government also developed mechanism and special procedures which are important to ensure effective and efficient process to prevent and protect human trafficking suitable to current situation.

However, the magnitude of trafficking in persons in Thailand has been increasingly complex, expanding to various forms and networks. Trafficking for labour exploitation has been amplified. The Ministry of Labour is now recognize these changes, therefore, cooperated with the Ministry of Social Development and Human Security, panels of experts and specialists from both governmental and non-governmental agencies to develop the Operational Guideline to Prevent, Suppress, and Protect Persons Effected by Labour Trafficking to response to current situation.

The Ministry of Social Development and Human Security would like thank the International Labour Organization for the cooperation and supports to create this operational guideline. This guideline was a success in bringing cooperation between the Ministries. The Ministry of Social Development and Human Security expected that this guideline will lead the concern agencies both the governmental and non-governmental organizations, particularly the Ministry of Labour, to be able to operate within the same principle and in harmony to prevent and solve problems of trafficking in persons in Thailand

Appreciation

The Office of Welfare Promotion, Protection, and Empowerment of Vulnerable Groups - OPP, The Ministry of Social Development and Human Security would like to express our appreciation to the Sub-Committee to Combat Trafficking in Children and Women, and the Central and the Provincial Committees, particularly the Provincial Committee in 5 lower central region provinces namely Phetchaburi, Prachuap Khiri Khan, Samut Prakan, Samut Songkhram, and Samut Sakhon for their dedication to create this Operational Guideline to Prevent, Suppress, and Protect Persons Effected by Labour Trafficking. Through series of 18 meetings, the operational guideline was drafted and went through public hearing to receive further comments from other organizations. Recommendations from all concerned agencies participating in public hearing was integrated and finalized into this operational guideline. The concerned agencies signed on their cooperation to develop the Operational Guideline on 30 April 2008 at Princeton Park Suite Hotel, Bangkok.

The process of drafting and development of the operational guideline is quite time consuming in order to allow efficient times for the members of working groups to learn from each other working experiences and have coherence understanding. The process was participatory learning for all agencies, through integrative process of analysis and synthesis. This process is, thus, as important as effective implementation of the guideline.

As a coordinating agency, the OPP would like to express sincere appreciation to Dr. Saisuree Chutikul, Chairperson of the Sub-committee to Combat Trafficking in Children and Women and members of the committee from the central and regional offices for their genuine collaboration and dedication till we have accomplished this task. We would like to thank to the International Labour Organization for their technical and financial supports. We are hoping that the guideline will be an operating manual for officials and all concerned staffs to prevent, suppress, and protect the persons who are victims and effected by trafficking, particularly trafficking for labour exploitation.

Operational Guideline on the Prevention and Suppression of Trafficking for Labour Purposes, and Assistance and Protection for Trafficked Persons

1. Background and Rationale

The Thai Government has long placed importance on preventing and addressing the trafficking in persons problem. This was demonstrated firstly in the Act on Trafficking in Women and Girls, B.E. 2471, which afterwards was amended and became the Act on the Measures in Prevention and Suppression of Trafficking in Women and Children, B.E. 2540. However, in order to prevent and suppress trafficking and provide assistance and protection to trafficked persons, in accordance with the Convention and Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons and international principles on human rights, and to increase efficiency, the Thai Government has once again revised this law, now called the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act, B.E. 2551. This law shall come into force on June 5, 2008.

Apart from the aforesaid legal mechanisms, the Thai Government has also given importance to developing other mechanisms and special measures for strengthening the effectiveness of the process of prevention and suppression of trafficking in persons, such as developing memorandums of understanding (MOUs) between state agencies and non-governmental organizations, and developing international and regional MOUs. Since it appears that the labour exploitation of trafficked persons is increasing significantly, the Ministry of Labour, being aware of the importance of the said problem, thus joins hands with the Ministry of Social Development and Human Security and other agencies concerned, both from the government and private sector, to develop this Operational Guideline on the Prevention and Suppression of Trafficking for Labour Purposes, and Assistance and Protection for Trafficked Persons. The process received support and cooperation from the International Labour Organization.

This Operational Guideline is developed for officials of the Ministry of Labour and other concerned agencies, both from the government and private sector, and is intended to be used for cooperation in preventing and suppressing trafficking for labour purposes, providing assistance and protection to trafficked persons, applying a multidisciplinary approach in line with relevant domestic laws and in accord with the policies and responsibilities of the Ministry of Labour as well as international obligations, so that the same principles and procedures shall be applied with uniformity nationwide.
