ILO regular supervisory system: results and cautions

1. In a reporting year, observations by workers’ and employers’ organizations should be received by September 1st in order to be examined by the CEACR at its November/December meeting. Otherwise, its examination could be deferred.

2. CEACR normally makes an observation or a direct request asking the government for more information or its views on the observations if not already received.

Caution

Action: Send comment to CEACR
Desired results:

1. CEACR reviews the observation at its next meeting.
2. CEACR makes comments asking the government to take remedial action.

Caution

3. Governments may delay their reply or reply in a manner contrary to the observation.

Action: Government provides additional information
Desired results:

3. Information that government provides acknowledges a change in conformity with the comment.
4. CEACR makes its finding that national FOA standards require a change.

Caution

5. CEACR will continue dialogue until change is made, although this might take some time.

Action: Government resists change urged by CEACR
Desired results:

5. Government recants and changes policy, practice or law.
6. If government continues to resist, the case comes before the CAS.
