

Reports on credentials

First report of the Credentials Committee

1. The Credentials Committee of the 99th Session of the Conference is composed of Mr Greg Vines, Government delegate, Australia, Chairperson; Ms Lidija Horvatić, Employers' delegate, Croatia; and Mr Yves Veyrier, Workers' substitute delegate, France.

Composition of the Conference

2. Since the signing of the brief report presented by the Chairperson of the Governing Body of the International Labour Office (Provisional Record No. 5A), the composition of the Conference has been modified as follows.
3. Of the 183 member States of the International Labour Organization, 164 are represented at the Conference, that is, one more (Nepal) than was accredited at the time that the brief report was signed.

Accredited delegates and advisers

4. A total of 651 delegates, including 328 Government delegates, 161 Employers' delegates and 162 Workers' delegates, have been accredited.
5. A total of 2,316 advisers, including 1,135 Government advisers, 476 Employers' advisers and 705 Workers' advisers, have been accredited.
6. Therefore a total of 2,967 delegates and advisers have been accredited (see the attached table of accredited delegates and advisers established Friday, 4 June 2010, at 7.00 p.m.)
7. With regard to the resolutions concerning the participation of women in ILO meetings, adopted by the Conference at its 67th and 78th Sessions (June 1981 and June 1991), 140 of the 651 accredited titular delegates are women, representing 21.5 per cent of accredited titular delegates, against 20.6 per cent last year. Furthermore, 682 of the 2,316 advisers (29.4 per cent) that are accredited to the Conference are women. A total of 822 women have been accredited to the Conference, which is 27.7 per cent of total delegates and advisers against 28.5 per cent last year. The Committee notes that the participation of women as titular delegates in the Conference has improved slightly this year, but it regrets that the overall participation of women in the Conference has moved a bit further away from the United Nations target set in 1990 of increasing the proportion of women in decision- and policy-making bodies to at least 30 per cent. The Committee also notes that the ILO Director-General's convocation letter urged the member States "to make every effort to achieve a gender balance in delegations".

Registered delegates and advisers

8. The following is the current status of the registration of delegates which is the basis for determining the quorum for voting (see the attached table of registered delegates and advisers established Friday, 4 June 2010, at 7.00 p.m.).
9. Currently, 516 delegates, including 292 Government delegates, 110 Employers' delegates and 114 Workers' delegates are registered.
10. In addition, 1,801 advisers, including 1,012 Government advisers, 311 Employers' advisers and 478 Workers' advisers are registered.

Incomplete and non-accredited delegations

11. The Committee notes that to date 19 member States have not sent a delegation (Antigua and Barbuda, Armenia, Belize, Dominica, Equatorial Guinea, Grenada, Kyrgyzstan, Marshall Islands, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Saint Lucia, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, Samoa, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Solomon Islands, Tajikistan, Trinidad and Tobago, Turkmenistan and Tuvalu). It notes that this represents three more than in 2009 and five more than in 2008. It also notes that while one member State (Libyan Arab Jamahiriya) has now accredited a complete tripartite delegation, there is still one member State (Uzbekistan) which has accredited a delegation that is exclusively governmental. The Committee further notes that one member State (Myanmar) has appointed an Employers' delegate but no Workers' delegate and two member States (Bosnia and Herzegovina and Iraq) have nominated a Workers' delegate but no Employers' delegate. The Committee deeply regrets that so many delegations are either incomplete or not accredited and urges governments to comply with the requirement of article 3 of the ILO Constitution to send a complete tripartite delegation to the Conference. The Committee recalls that, pursuant to a decision of the Governing Body,¹ the Director-General regularly requests the governments of all member States, which did not send a delegation or only sent an incomplete delegation to the Conference, to indicate the reasons for their failure to do so, in order that this information may be communicated to the Governing Body.
12. The Committee also notes that the number of accredited advisers in each group is not evenly balanced; in particular, there are fewer Employers' advisers (476) than Workers' advisers (705). In addition, the Committee observes that the composition of some delegations shows a serious imbalance between the number of Employers' and Workers' advisers when compared to the number of advisers appointed for the Government delegates. It urges governments to make a genuine effort to reduce the imbalance of the various categories of delegation members when making nominations to the Conference, in light of article 3, paragraphs 1 and 2, of the Constitution. The Committee further recalls the request contained in the resolution, adopted by the Conference at its 56th Session (1971), concerning the strengthening of tripartism in the overall activities of the International Labour Organization, and expects governments to accord equal treatment to each of the groups when appointing advisers to their national delegations to the Conference. The Committee recalls in this connection the Members' obligation under article 13, paragraph 2(a), of the Constitution, to pay the travelling and subsistence expenses of their delegates and advisers and expects that this obligation will be respected for the entire duration of the Conference.

Quorum

13. Forty-one advisers, who are also substitutes to delegates who have not registered, have been taken into account in calculating the quorum of the Conference.
14. Seven member States that have registered a delegation to the Conference (Burundi, Cape Verde, Comoros, Djibouti, Somalia, Ukraine and Uzbekistan) are in arrears in their financial contributions to the Organization under the terms of article 13, paragraph 4, of the Constitution and therefore their delegates may not, at present, participate in the voting in the Conference or its committees. Consequently, 16 registered delegates have not been taken into account in fixing the quorum. In addition, two registered delegates from member States entitled to vote (Myanmar and Iraq) are excluded in accordance with article 4, paragraph 2, of the ILO Constitution, because their delegations are incomplete. According to this article "if one of the Members fails to nominate one of the non-Government delegates whom it is entitled to nominate, the other non-Government delegate shall be allowed to sit and speak at the Conference, but not to vote".
15. At the present time the quorum required to give a vote validity is 270. This number represents 516 registered delegates (see paragraph 9 above), plus 41 substitute delegates (see paragraph 13 above) minus 18 registered delegates not entitled to vote, the total being divided by two.
16. The Committee regrets the fact that so many member States are still in arrears in their payments, thereby depriving their Employers' and Workers' delegates of their right to vote.
17. The Committee strongly appeals to the delegates to the Conference to register in person upon their arrival and to ensure they give formal notice of their departure date, in order to ensure that the quorum is as accurate as possible and that they are not counted as present when they are in fact absent from the Conference.

Observers, organizations and liberation movement invited

18. The Conference is also being attended by:
 - observers appointed by two States (Bhutan and the Holy See) invited to attend the Conference;
 - a tripartite delegation of a liberation movement (Palestine) invited in conformity with article 2, paragraph 3(k), of the Standing Orders of the Conference;
 - representatives of the United Nations and some of its bodies invited by virtue of Article II, paragraph 1, concerning reciprocal representation, of the Agreement between the United Nations and the International Labour Organization, which came into effect on 14 December 1946;

- representatives of specialized agencies and other official international organizations, invited in conformity with article 2, paragraph 3(b), of the Standing Orders of the Conference;
 - representatives of non-governmental international organizations with which consultative relations have been established, invited in conformity with article 2, paragraph 3(j), of the Standing Orders of the Conference; and
 - representatives of other non-governmental international organizations also invited in conformity with article 2, paragraph 3(j), of the Standing Orders of the Conference.

19. A list of these representatives is appended to the Provisional List of Delegations published as a supplement to the Provisional Record of the Conference on Wednesday, 2 June 2010, and will be updated in the Revised List of Delegations to be issued on Tuesday, 8 June 2010.

Objections, complaints and communications

20. To date, the Committee has before it several objections and complaints. It has forthwith commenced their examination. The Committee believes that its work was facilitated by the fact that a substantial number of credentials had reached the International Labour Office prior to the Conference. The Committee, however, notes with regret that only 99 member States deposited their credentials with the Office by the deadline required by article 26 of the Standing Orders of the Conference (18 May 2010).² The Committee expects member States to respect their obligations in this regard, since timely accreditation promotes transparency of the national nomination process and is essential for the employers' and workers' organizations concerned.

21. Further, it is important that governments utilize, and complete in full, the credentials form enclosed with the letter of convocation to the Conference, which is sent to governments every year, or the *Online Credentials*³ application made available by the Office. These forms for credentials are important as they help in providing clear information on the role of each member of the delegation as well as on organizations consulted in the nomination process and on the payment of travel and subsistence expenses as required by paragraph 2(a) of article 13 of the Constitution. In order to comply with article 3, paragraph 5, of the Constitution, governments should provide accurate information on the employers' and workers' organizations consulted in nominating Employers' and Workers' delegates and advisers, as well as on the organizations that have agreed to such nominations. The Committee notes that this year 83.5 per cent of member States have used either the written or online form to submit their credentials (against 79 per cent last year). The Committee notes with satisfaction this increase and encourages all governments to use one of the abovementioned forms for future sessions of the Conference.

22. Nevertheless, the Committee notes that not all member States have clearly identified, in their credentials, the persons who are nominated as delegates and those who are nominated as advisers and it recalls the obligation of governments under Article 3, paragraph 8, of the ILO Constitution to communicate to the Office the names of the delegates and their advisers. It wishes to stress the importance of governments identifying clearly in the credentials the delegates and advisers nominated. Credentials that do not contain this information cannot be considered as credentials and may be rejected by the Office.

- 23. In order to enable the Committee to fulfil its mandate, all governments are required to indicate in their credentials the organizations to which each of the Employers' and Workers' delegates and advisers belong, as well as their functions within those organizations. Nevertheless nine governments have not provided this required information for all of the Employers' and Workers' delegates and advisers. These governments will be requested to provide this information and the Committee urges them to do so without delay. It hopes that in future sessions of the Conference such information will be provided in time for publication in the Provisional List of Delegations, which, in accordance with article 26bis, paragraph 1(a), of the Conference Standing Orders, serves as the basis for the submission of objections to the Committee.
- 24. The Credentials Committee submits the present report to the Conference so that it may take note of it.
