COMMITTEE OF EXPERTS ON THE APPLICATION OF CONVENTIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS (CEACR)
- Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention, 1999 (No.182)
- Minimum Age Convention, 1973 (No. 138)

2013 Observation, Convention No. 182

- Article 3 clause (d) and article 4 (1) - Worst forms of child labour. Hazardous work

The Committee previously requested the Government to provide information on the application in practice of section 20A of the Employment of Women, Young Persons, and Children Act of 2006, which prohibits the employment of children under the age of 18 years in any hazardous occupation.

The Committee notes the Government’s statement that around 65,000 labour inspections are carried out annually and no incidents of hazardous work by children have been detected in the formal economy. The Committee notes, however, that, according to the findings of the Child Activity Survey 2009, out of the total child population of 107,259 reported to be in child labour, 63,916 children (1.5 per cent) between the ages of 5–17 years are engaged in hazardous work. The incidence of hazardous forms of child labour is highest in the manufacturing industries followed by the service and agricultural industries.

Noting that a large number of children under the age of 18 years are involved in hazardous work in Sri Lanka, the Committee urges the Government to take immediate and effective measures to ensure their protection from hazardous work, including in the informal economy. It also requests the Government to provide information on the measures taken in this regard and on the results achieved.

- Article 2(2) of the Convention - Raising the minimum age for admission to employment or work.

The Committee previously noted the Government’s information that the Ministry of Labour Relations and Foreign Employment was considering the possibility of extending the age for admission to employment to 16 years and that steps were being taken to consult the relevant organizations/parties concerned. The Committee requested the Government to indicate whether any amendments raising the minimum age for employment to 16 years had been made.

The Committee notes the Government’s statement that amendments in this regard have been submitted to the Attorney-General for approval, which will thereupon be submitted to the Parliament for adoption.

The Committee expresses its firm hope that the amendments with regard to raising the minimum age for admission to employment to 16 years will be adopted in the near future. In this regard, the Committee would like to draw the Government’s attention to the provisions of Article 2(2) of the Convention, which provides that any Member having ratified this Convention may subsequently notify the Director-General of the International Labour Office, by a new declaration, that it has raised the minimum age that it had previously specified. The Committee would be grateful if the Government would consider the possibility of sending a declaration of this nature to the Office, in case any amendments to the national legislation raising the minimum age for admission to employment or work to 16 years have been made.

- Article 2 (3). Compulsory education.

The Committee previously noted the Government’s information that the Ministry of Education had taken steps to submit a Bill to the Parliament in respect of extending compulsory schooling up to 16 years of age.

The Committee notes the Government’s information that the Cabinet of Ministers have approved the memorandum submitted by the Ministry of Education on raising the upper age limit of compulsory education from 14 years to 16 years. The Government further indicates that the amendments in this regard have been submitted to the Attorney-General for approval.

The Committee expresses the firm hope that the Government will take the necessary measures to ensure that the amendments with regard to extending compulsory education up to 16 years will be adopted in the near future. It requests the Government to provide information on any progress made in this regard, as well as to supply a copy, once it has been adopted.

The Committee notes that, according to the findings of the Child Activity Survey of 2008–09 conducted by the Department of Census and Statistics, 2.5 per cent of the total child population aged between 5 and 17 years are involved in child labour, of which 1.5 per cent are engaged in hazardous work. About 80.8 per cent of the working children are engaged in unpaid family work; 66.3 per cent are engaged in elementary occupations such as street and mobile vendors, domestic helpers, mining, construction, manufacturing, transport and related work; while 61 per cent are engaged in the agricultural sector. The survey report further indicates that the average work time by children aged 5–17 years is 13.3 hours per week.

The Committee notes the Government’s statement that the Department of Labour (DoL) is making every effort to enforce the law against child labour and that no incidence of child labour has been observed in the formal economy. In 2012, the DoL received 186 complaints on child labour in the informal economy of which four cases have been filed with the magistrate courts, while in the other cases legal action was impossible due to lack of evidence. The Committee further notes the Government’s information that one of its districts, “Rathnapura”, is envisaged to become a Child Labour Free Zone by 2015, and that the Government is trying to expand this concept into other districts as well. According to the Government’s report, the main aspect of this concept is that it has the support of all government programmes related to education, vocational training, poverty alleviation and other social welfare schemes, as well as support of the private sector and the non-governmental organizations, in eliminating child labour. The Committee notes, however, the comments made by the NTUF that the number of cases of employment of children are much more than indicated by the Government as most of the children are employed as domestic workers where outsiders have no access.

The Committee encourages the Government to take the necessary measures within the framework of its attempt to expand the Child Labour Free Zone concept to all of its districts by 2016, to ensure the application of the Convention to all branches of economic activity, including the informal economy. In this regard, the Committee requests the Government to take effective measures to strengthen the capacity and expand the reach of the labour inspectorate to better monitor children working in the informal economy, including domestic workers. The Committee also requests the Government to continue providing information on the manner in which the Convention is applied in practice, including information from the labour inspectorate on the number and nature of contraventions reported, violations detected and penalties applied.

COMMITTEE ON THE RIGHTS OF THE CHILD
Concluding observations
19 October 2010

Education, including vocational training and guidance

62. The Committee commends the State party for the significant progress achieved over the years in the areas of school enrolment, literacy and gender equality. The Committee also welcomes the adoption of the Education Sector Development Framework and Programme (2006-2010), which focuses mainly on improving equity in access to education and the quality of education, and the National Policy on Early Childhood Care and Education adopted in 2005. Nevertheless, the Committee is concerned that:

(a) Despite the need for school infrastructure, especially in conflict-affected areas where schooling has been disrupted for thousands of displaced children, public investment in education is at a relatively modest level and lower than the South Asian average;
(b) Significant disparities in accessing education persist between provinces, affecting, in particular, the Uva, Northern, North Central and Eastern provinces and the most vulnerable and marginalized children;
(c) School fees continue to be charged despite the constitutional guarantee of free education, introducing discrimination against children from poor families and facilitating corruption in school admissions;
(d) The National Policy on Early Childhood Care and Education is not funded or implemented, leaving most early childhood development programmes in private hands;
(e) One out of five children drop out of school before completing the compulsory nine-year cycle and that a high level of absenteeism and repetition persists, due mainly to the low quality of education, especially in the most remote areas where unqualified teachers continue to work;
(f) Children have few opportunities to be involved in decision-making in educational settings;
(g) Insufficient efforts have been made to include human rights and peace education in the school curricula.

➢ Economic exploitation, including child labour

65. The Committee expresses concern that considerable numbers of children are economically active; a quarter of them are not attending school or any other educational institutions. The Committee also expresses concern that most of the working children reside in rural areas and 60 per cent of them work as agricultural workers. The Committee is also concerned at the absence of legislation implementing the prohibition of the 49 occupations considered to be hazardous by the State party. It further reiterates its concern as to the situation of children used as domestic servants, who remain unprotected in spite of their high vulnerability to abuse and violence.

66. The Committee also urges the State party to take more active measures to prevent children from being economically exploited, and in particular to establish a strong component of the labour inspectorate responsible for monitoring child labour cases. The Committee also calls upon the State party to adopt and implement legislation prohibiting the employment of children in hazardous work. The Committee further urges the State party to ensure that those who economically exploit children and abuse domestic workers are duly brought to justice.
