

International Labour Organization

► Next generation sector skills bodies

Driving productivity, innovation, decent work and social justice

► When skills systems and the world of work are disconnected, labour market outcomes are weakened.

In many countries, education and training do not adapt fast enough to changing labour market needs.

Consequences

Skills mismatches
& talentshortages

Reduce productivity & innovation

Barriers to decent work

► Sector Skills Bodies make the connection.

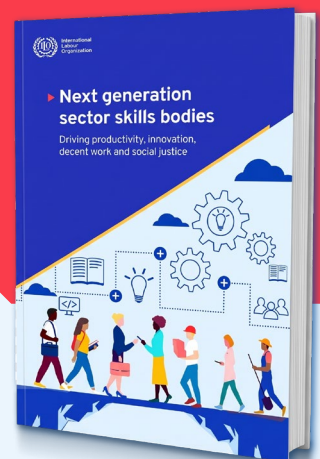

Sector Skills Bodies bring all stakeholders together to shape skills and business development around the realities of each sector.

► Economic transformation happens within sectors.

SSBs institutionalize industry leadership and social dialogue to align skills with demand, support enterprise transformation and advance decent work.

The new ILO guide

► Explore the Guide

For policymakers

For employers' and workers' organizations

For skills institutions and practitioners

For development partners

Responsive skills systems. Stronger enterprises. Better opportunities for workers.