PROJECT BACKGROUND

General background

Over the past decade, Jordan has needed to weather several exogenous shocks brought on by the spill-over effects of regional turmoil. More specifically, the Syrian crisis in 2011, ushered the influx of over 650 thousand refugees to Jordan, which strained national resources and overburdened the country's infrastructure and social services. The repercussions of external events unravelled deeply rooted impediments that hamper Jordan's economic resilience and growth. Today, the country faces an array of economic and social challenges that render employment and job creation even more challenging, particularly among the most vulnerable.

The outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic aggravated economic downturn and had dramatic outcomes for poverty in Jordan, forcing many previously non-poor households into highly vulnerable conditions. By December 2020, the country's poverty rates had increased by 38 percentage points among Jordanian locals and 18 percentage points for Syrian refugees. This resulted in 1.5 million Jordanians and 76,000 Syrian refugees becoming newly poor. At the early stages of the outbreak, the government endorsed a cohort of prevention measures to curtail the virus's spread, including complete and partial lockdowns, the enforcement of strict curfews, restrictions on movement, and the closure of businesses, schools and universities.

Domestic lockdowns, compounded with global uncertainty, resulted in severe demand shocks to the Jordanian economy and a sharp decline in economic activity. According to an ILO survey, at the onset of the crisis as many as 39% of vulnerable workers were no longer working, 31% as of vulnerable Jordanians had been temporarily laid off, and 17% permanently laid off. Additionally, 29% of those surveyed reported not having enough food in the past week due to an inability to afford it. Overall, sluggish macroeconomic performance stifled the Jordanian labour market's ability to create jobs for its growing population. According to Jordan's Department of Statistics (DoS), the country suffered a net job loss of 68.9 thousand in 2020, compared to 69.1 thousand in net job creation in 2008. This is reflected by a stark climb in unemployment rates, reaching an all-time high of 24.1% in 2021, producing detrimental outcomes for vulnerable households.

ASSIGNMENT BACKGROUND

In 2020, the EU signed a joint programme agreement with the ILO and UNICEF titled "Towards an inclusive national social protection system and accelerating decent job opportunities for Syrians and vulnerable Jordanians." The joint programme seeks to contribute to the achievement of a sustainable social protection system, in policy as well as institutional set-up, with strengthened links between social protection and employment for both Jordanian and refugee populations and enhanced outreach into the informal sector

The ILO-UNICEF Joint Programme serves to support the operationalisation and implementation of the Jordanian National Social Protection Strategy (2019-2025), with a view to contribute to the achievement of a sustainable social protection system, in policy as well as institutional set-up, with strengthened links between social protection and employment for both Jordanian and refugee populations and enhanced outreach into the formal sector. Based on long-standing relations with the Jordanian government and other partners, lessons learnt and extensive experience of both ILO and UNICEF in the area of social protection and employment promotion for youth as well as adults, women as well as men, Jordanian host communities as well as refugees, the project serves to achieve three outcomes:

Outcome1: Enhanced coordination, integrated planning and monitoring for government wide efforts in the social protection and employment sector. Outputs delivered serve to strengthen mechanisms for coordinated implementation of national employment and social protection interventions in the context of the NSPS.

Outcome2: Strengthened national systems/mechanisms to enhance access to labour market, decent work and employment based social protection schemes. Outputs delivered serve to provide support towards effective and cost-efficient implementation and realisation of access to employment (work permits), enhanced capacity for the implementation of mechanisms to ensure increasingly decent work (labour inspection) and access to social security expanded to workers in the informal economy.

Outcome3: Vulnerable Jordanians and Syrians transition from cash assistance to sustainable jobs. Outputs are directed towards the design and implementation of a graduation mechanism to support the transition of vulnerable people on cash assistance (provided by NAF and UNHCR) to employment, by providing a systematic and tailored package of services, delivered primarily by ILO and UNICEF service centres.

The project is aligned with the GoJ's draft graduation mechanism and complements other ongoing and recent efforts aimed at strengthened government capacity and outreach in the area of social protection and employment promotion, thus entailing a strategic contribution to the development objective "Strengthened self-reliance of the most vulnerable refugees, Syrians in particular, as well as host communities, towards the establishment of an inclusive national protection system."

The Selection of employers is based on the availability of job opportunities, and the financial and technical offers received from companies/employers, all companies implementing the program will provide induction and technical training for each beneficiary, including decent work conditions, code of conduct, legal rights, safety measures and first aid training. Additionally, ILO technical staff will be conducting regular field monitoring and evaluation visits.

Selection of occupations will be based on a process that involves but not limited to, conducting a needs assessment, consulting with industry experts, considering the trainees' interests and abilities, analysing training resources, and prioritizing occupations with growth potential. This targeted approach can help ensure that the training is aligned with the local labour market needs and provides meaningful job opportunities for the trainees.

To ensure competency-based training linked to recognized qualifications; implementing companies will conduct a job analysis, develop measurable learning outcomes aligned with qualifications, create engaging training materials, develop relevant assessment methods, assessments such as, Needs Assessment, Baseline Assessment, Training Evaluation, Job Placement and Retention Tracking, Post-employment Support Evaluation, Impact Assessment, Satisfaction and Feedback Surveys, Periodic Reviews and Audit.
