

“Occupational Safety and Health (OSH) and Youth in Indonesia”

Dylan Tromp, Project Manager, Youth 4 OSH International Labour Organization (ILO)

28 April 2017, Jakarta, Indonesia

International
Labour
Organization

What's the problem?

International Labour
Organization

860,000

workers suffer from non-fatal work-related injuries and illnesses around the world every day.

International
Labour
Organization

6,400

workers die from occupational injuries and diseases globally every day.

International
Labour
Organization

Lost work days represent

4%

of the world's Gross Domestic Product (GDP)

International
Labour
Organization

What does this have to do with youth?

Young workers are

40%

more likely to experience a non-fatal occupational injury than older workers.

International
Labour
Organization

1/2

of Indonesia's population is below the age of 30.

International
Labour
Organization

What can we do about it?

GREATER OSH AWARENESS & KNOWLEDGE

The hazards and risks faced by young workers will be more widely understood

GREATER OSH CAPACITY

Tripartite constituents will be better equipped to address workplace hazards and risks

Generating demand for improvements

Activating and equipping networks & organizations

Creating a culture of prevention

International
Labour
Organization

#Youth4OSH

Building a culture of prevention

International
Labour
Organization