REFERRAL DIRECTORY

Services for Labour Migrants and Survivors of Trafficking

Migrant workers and reintegrated survivors of human trafficking often need access to a variety of services, including legal counseling and advice, job and life skills training, trauma recovery support, and intensive case management.

This Referral Directory 2014 is an important tool for national & regional social workers, border authorities, and community-based service providers working with Cambodian migrants & trafficked persons and aims to assist these stakeholders to make appropriate and effective referrals for their clients.

The Referral Directory 2014 focuses on services available for migrants before, during and after working abroad, and on survivors of human trafficking who have been reintegrated or returned home to their communities in Cambodia. Thus, the directory does not include those organizations offering only long-term shelter facilities, but focuses on community-based service providers. The directory includes the contact details and program descriptions of direct service providers, as well as the contact information for Cambodian embassies in the region and regional coalitions working to combat labour exploitation and human trafficking.

For ease of reference, the referral directory is divided into four regions, with services in Phnom Penh listed separately. The booklet has been designed based on the idea that the community is the ideal place for holistic recovery and rehabilitation, and that both migrants and survivors of trafficking should be linked to services available in their own communities, or as close to there as possible. To further facilitate this, the beginning of each section includes a short summary of services in the region, as well as details on the nearest province where additional services are available.

The directory includes five categories of community services:

Coordination & Networking

Recovery and Psychosocial Support Services

Legal Assistance

Medical Services

Skills Training & Job Placement

Social service providers and first-responders such as border authorities and anti-trafficking police play an important role in assisting clients to access appropriate services. It is our hope that, through the use of this directory, survivors of trafficking and migrant workers will have greater choice in, and access to, the support services they require to become self-sufficient, empowered individuals, who are able to make informed decisions about and rebuild their lives within their communities in Cambodia.

Safe Migration Tips to Share

Potential migrants may come to your organisation to ask about migrating for work. When providing information, you should highlight the following safe migration tips.

Ask lots of questions! Talk to lots of people before you make the decision to migrate, especially your family and friends. Returned migrants, NGOs, Migrant Resource Centres, and other community based organisations can also help answer your questions about what living and working abroad is really like.

Migrate legally. Legal migrants have a passport, visa, and work permit and sign a contract with their employer. You are more likely to be protected in your home country and the workplace if you are legal. Irregular migrants are at much greater risk of being exploited and may be arrested, detained in the destination country and deported.

Safe Migration Tips

Check with the authorities and others that your recruitment agency is licensed and has a good reputation. Review the contract with the agency and the contract with the employer. Keep receipts for all payments made in the recruitment and migration process.

Sign a contract with your employer. Make sure you understand what is included in the contract. If your recruiter or employer is asking you to work without a contract, it is a warning sign that your employer may be planning to take advantage of you.

Make photocopies of your important documents- including your passport, visa, work permit, and signed contract – leave one copy with your family and another with the Migrant Worker Resource Centre or an NGO.

Safe Migration Tips

Know whom to contact if you have a problem abroad. Make a list of important contact details prior to your departure. Leave one copy with your family and take the other with you. This includes numbers of the Embassy, NGOs, trade unions, migrant associations, your family, friends and anyone else who might assist you in your host country. Try to memorize at least one of these numbers!

Stay in contact. Regularly communicate with your family and friends to let them know you are safe. Try to meet others and build a network of support in your host country.

For more information, visit a Migrant Worker Resource Centre (MRC) or drop-in centre. Staff have been trained to give advice on migrating for work – the jobs available, potential risks and benefits, the migration process, rights at work, and how to keep safe. They provide help understanding contracts, passports and visas requirements. The MRC can also refer migrants to other service providers that do work related to migration, like vocational training or language lessons or medical or health checks.

Contact details for the MRCs listed in this referral booklet:

- Phnom Penh (see page 6)
- Battambang province (see page 14)
- Kampong Cham province (see page 27)
- Prey Veng province (see page 29)

Phnom Penh Overview

Phnom Penh is the capital of Cambodia. The majority of services for trafficked persons and returned migrants are centralized here, including head offices for regional service providers. A full range of services are available in Phnom Penh, such as legal counseling, investigation and prosecution assistance, recovery and psychological support services (including several emergency and mid-term shelters), medical clinics, and options for vocational training and employment placement agencies. The ministries of the Royal Government of Cambodia are also based in the capital, as is the headquarters of the Anti-Human Trafficking and Juvenile Protection police (023 997 919 or 017 276 222), where complaints and cases of human trafficking can be reported.

North West Cambodia Overview

The North West (NW) region of Cambodia borders both Thailand and Lao PDR. Apart from Phnom Penh, the NW region has the widest range of services available to survivors of trafficking and returned migrants, especially in the provinces of Siem Reap, Battambang, and Banteay Meanchey (which includes Poipet City, the international border crossing between Thailand and Cambodia). Services in these three provinces include legal assistance, recovery and psychological services, vocational training, job placement assistance, medical clinics, and drug rehabilitation programs. There is also a Migrant Resource Center in the provincial town of Battambang (see page 15).

North East Cambodia Overview

The North East (NE) region of Cambodia borders both Vietnam and Lao PDR. A number of ethnic minority groups live in this region and very few direct services are available for trafficked persons and migrants. Legal assistance is available in most provinces, and one recovery and psychosocial support service provider is in Stung Treng province. The nearest locations for additional recovery and psychological support services, as well as vocational training opportunities, are Kampong Cham province (see page 27) and Siem Reap province (see page 17).

South West Cambodia Overview

The South West (SW) region of Cambodia borders Thailand and the Gulf of Thailand. The region includes source provinces for irregular migrants travelling from Cambodia to Thailand, which often leads to trafficking or labour exploitation. Legal assistance is available in all provinces in the SW region. Recovery and job placement services are only available in Koh Kong, Kampong Speu, and Preah Sihanouk provinces. The nearest location for additional support services is Phnom Penh (see page 6).

South East Cambodia Overview

The South East (SE) region of Cambodia borders Vietnam and the Gulf of Thailand. The primary vocations in the area are farming and fishing. There are two Migrant Resource Centers in this region in Prey Veng and Kampong Cham provinces (see page 29 and 27). Legal assistance is available in every province, while Kampong Cham offers the widest range of services, including recovery and psychological support and vocational training programs. Phnom Penh may also be considered as the nearest location for additional services not available in the SE region.

The Referral Directory: Services for Returned Migrants and Survivors of Trafficking, Cambodia 2014 was compiled and published by Chab Dai Coalition and the International Labor Organization (ILO), in collaboration with the Ministry of Social Affairs, Veterans, & Youth Rehabilitation (MOSVY) and the National Committee for Counter Trafficking in Persons (NCCT)). The directory was reviewed by stakeholder forums and partner agencies prior to publication.

This referral directory is provided for information purposes only. It does not claim to be an exhaustive list of organizations providing services to survivors of human trafficking or migrant workers in Cambodia, and inclusion in the directory offers no endorsement, approval or guarantee of the service providers listed herein.

Although every effort has been made to include as many relevant organizations as possible, it is anticipated that future editions of the directory will require amendments. Please contact Chab Dai Coalition with any modifications, additions, or deletions to the services listed by sending an email to cambodia@chabdai.org.
