IN COMMEMORATION OF

WORLD DAY OF SOCIAL JUSTICE

Progress Denied:
The impact of inequalities on development

21 February 2013 - 1:15pm to 2:45pm
United Nations, Conference Room 2

Inequalities are a global challenge that harms everyone. Inequalities are often closely associated with and reinforced by specific forms of discrimination, including in the social, economic, legal and cultural spheres. However, inequalities are much greater than differences and often focus more on fairness and social justice.

This moderated panel will explore the various forms and manifestations of inequalities which are central to the post-2015 discussions. Panelists will provide specific examples of how inequalities result from structural barriers, are incompatible with sustained progress for all and prevent people from enjoying dignity, human rights and interacting as equals in society.

The event will feature:

* Ambassador Talaibek Kydyrov - Permanent Mission of the Kyrgyz Republic
* Manuela Tomei - Director, Conditions of Work and Equality, ILO
* Bryce Covert - The Nation and the Roosevelt Institute
* Rania Antonopoulos - Director, Gender Equality and Economy, Levy Institute
* Helen Panagiotopoulos - Communications, Domestic Workers United
