

The best ideas are locally grown

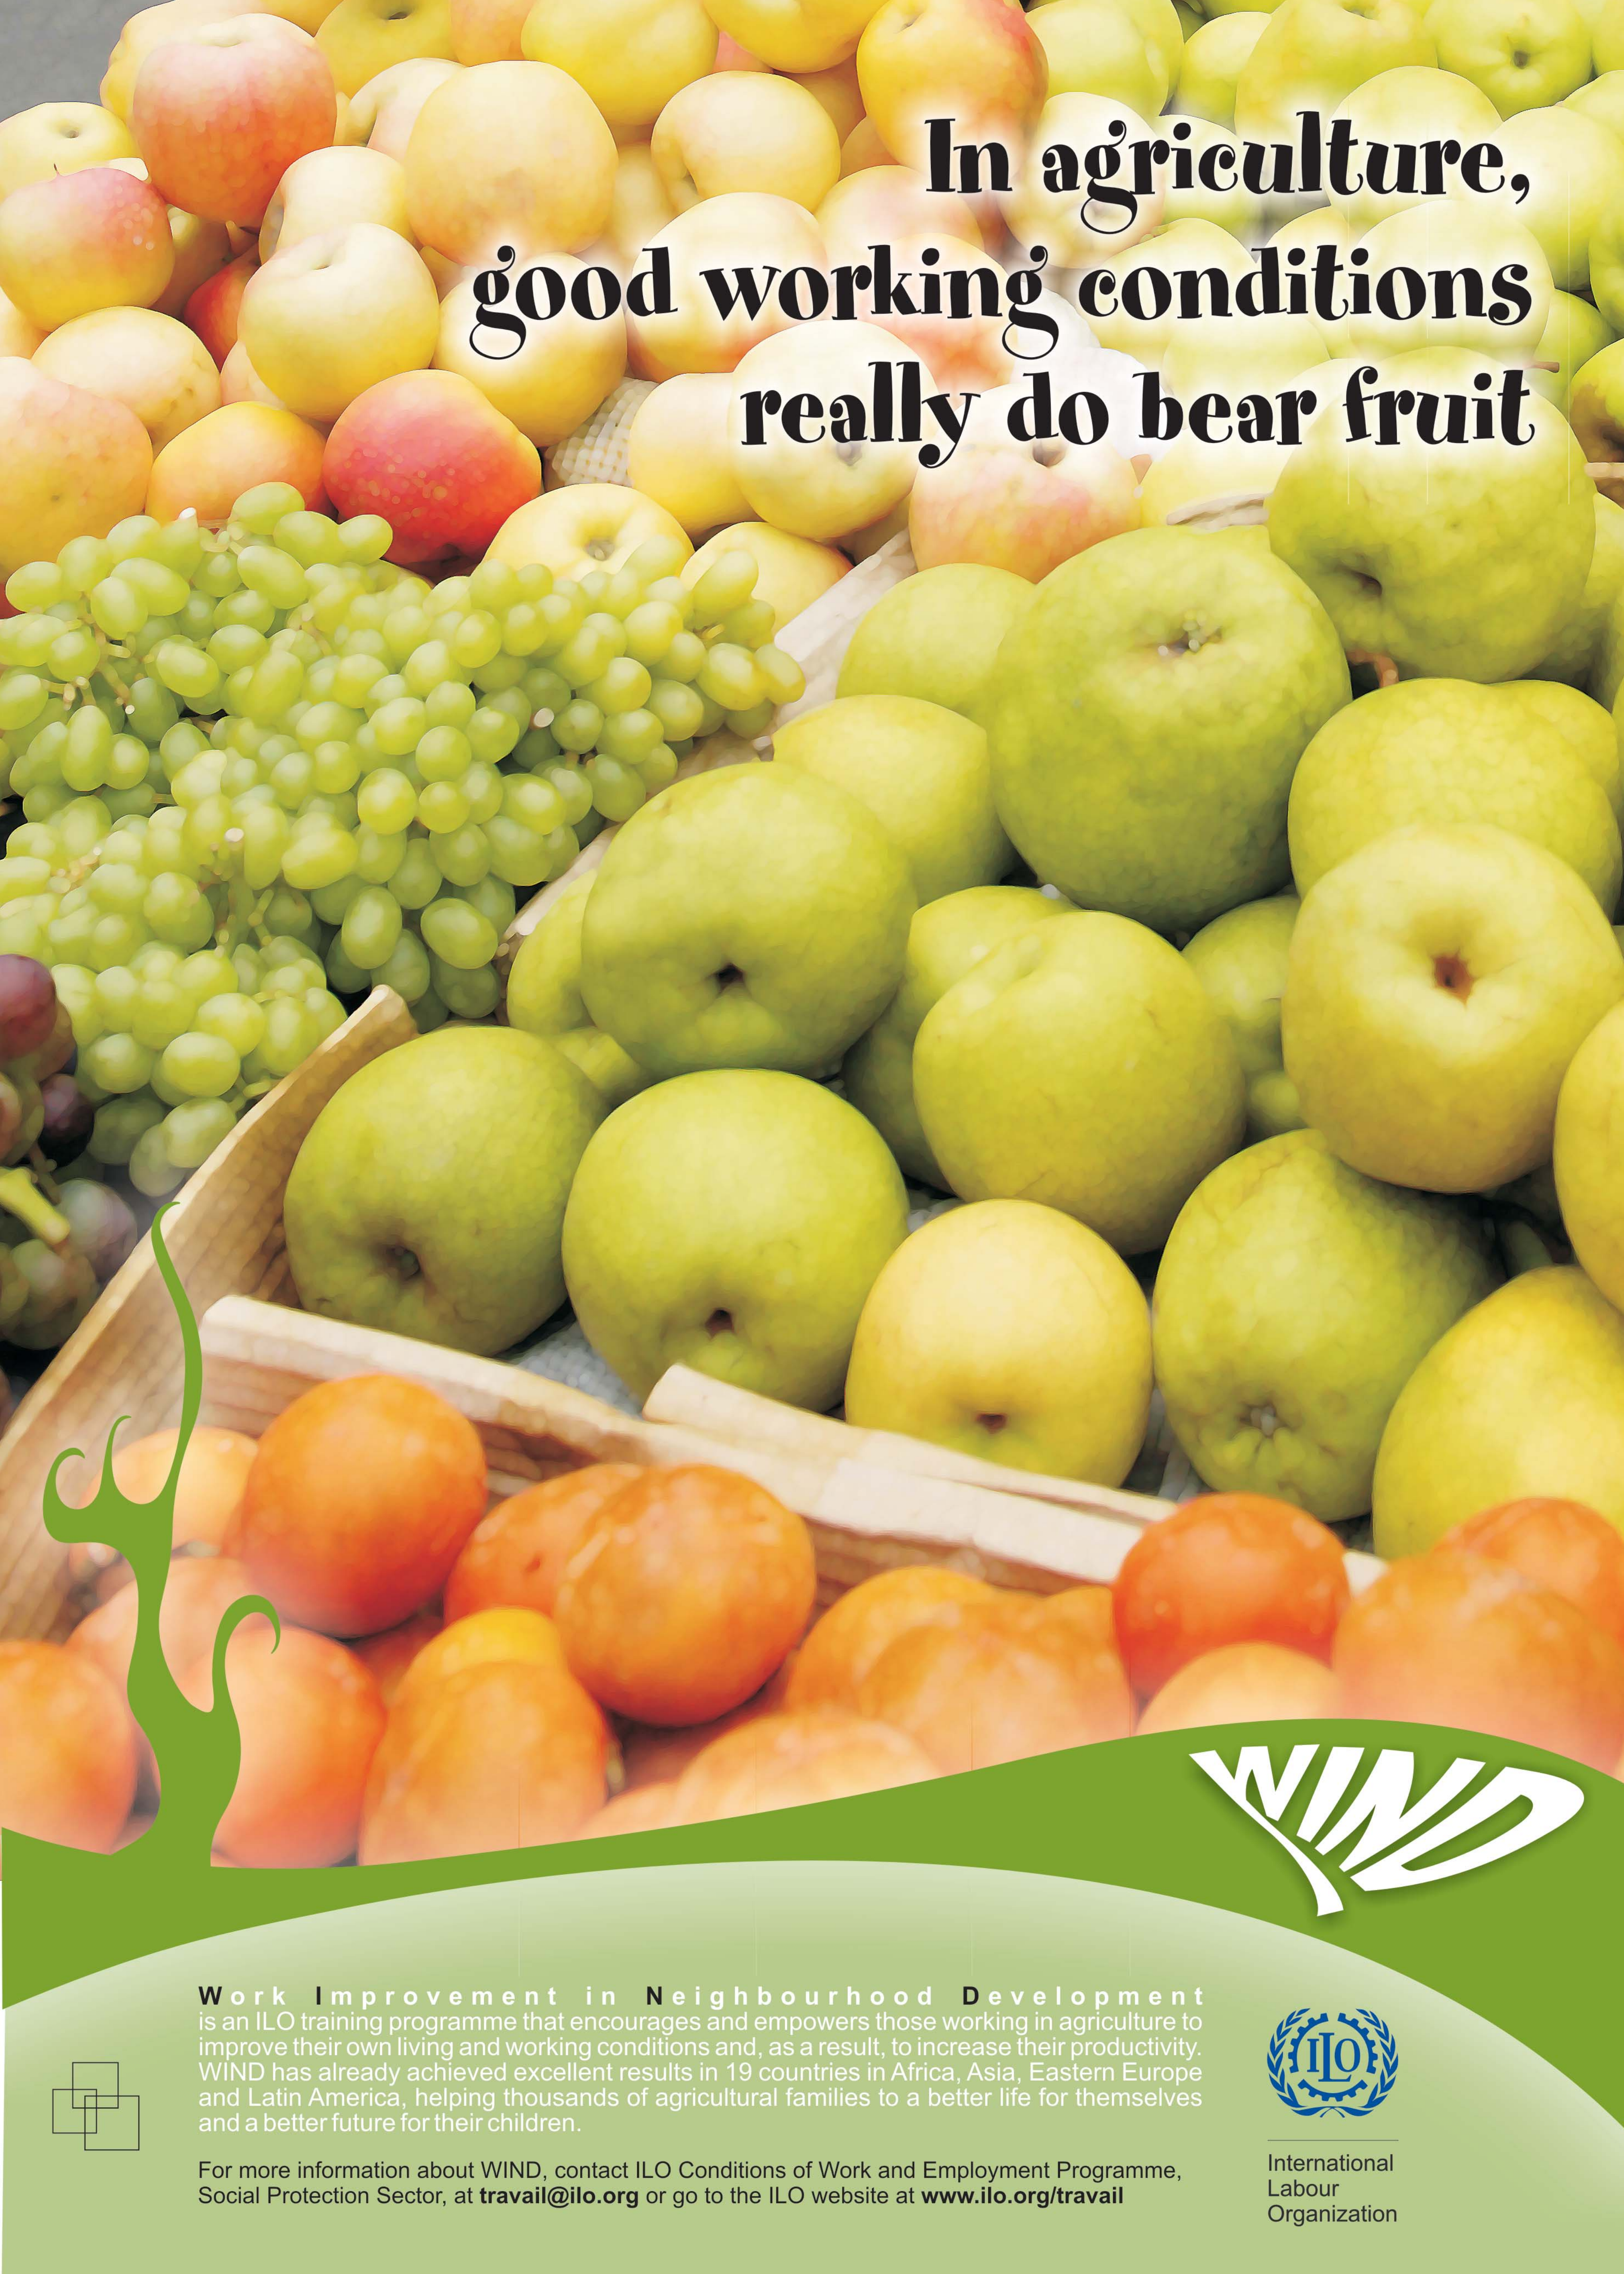

Work Improvement in Neighbourhood Development is an ILO training programme that encourages and empowers those working in agriculture to improve their own living and working conditions and, as a result, to increase their productivity. WIND has already achieved excellent results in 19 countries in Africa, Asia, Eastern Europe and Latin America, helping thousands of agricultural families to a better life for themselves and a better future for their children.

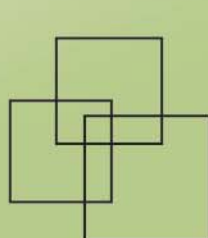

For more information about WIND, contact ILO Conditions of Work and Employment Programme, Social Protection Sector, at travail@ilo.org or go to the ILO website at www.ilo.org/travail

International
Labour
Organization

In agriculture,
good working conditions
really do bear fruit

Work Improvement in Neighbourhood Development is an ILO training programme that encourages and empowers those working in agriculture to improve their own living and working conditions and, as a result, to increase their productivity. WIND has already achieved excellent results in 19 countries in Africa, Asia, Eastern Europe and Latin America, helping thousands of agricultural families to a better life for themselves and a better future for their children.

For more information about WIND, contact ILO Conditions of Work and Employment Programme, Social Protection Sector, at travail@ilo.org or go to the ILO website at www.ilo.org/travail

International
Labour
Organization