Executive summary

In November 2013 the Government of Lebanon adopted the National Action Plan (NAP) to Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labour in Lebanon by 2016. The Plan was prepared by the National Steering Committee Against Child Labour (NSC) under the stewardship of the Ministry of Labour and in collaboration with IPEC-ILO – Regional Office for Arab States, and was launched by the President of the Republic General Michel Suleiman on 7 November 2013.

This follows the issuance of the Decree No. 8987, endorsed by the Lebanese Government and signed by the President of the Republic in September 2012, prohibiting the employment of children under the age of 18 and states that all types of work that may harm the health, safety or morals of children.

Informed by two workshops, this National-awareness Raising Strategy (NAS) outlines the key activities to be undertaken in order to effectively inform the public and engage national stakeholders in the implementation of the NAP. The implementation of the NAS will be led by a media sub-committee formed by a decision of the Minister of Labour.

After engaging with various stakeholders and potential donors, the media sub-committee will prepare a detailed implementation, monitoring and evaluation plan including a full budget. It will then submit it to the National Steering Committee for approval, in coordination and collaboration with the Child Labour Unit at the Ministry of Labour

THE STRATEGY OBJECTIVES

Over a 24-month period (2014-2016), the media sub-committee of the NSC will seek to:

- (1) Increase public awareness and support for the National Action Plan by promoting a clear, consistent and coherent communication campaign, producing and disseminating public information materials, making information on the WFCL accessible online and through social networks, ensure that the public is kept informed of the progress of the NAP, and engaging with the media on a regular basis, and linking the campaign to national days.
- (2) Promote adherence to Decree 8987/2012 at the local level by informing and enabling local and regional authorities, educators, relevant Ministries and the National Social Security Fund to play their part.
- (3) Encourage policy change by lobbying Lebanese lawmakers and political parties.
- (4) Mobilize national stakeholders to combat WFCL, including the private sector, trade unions, civil society organizations, and the religious establishment and university students.

STAKEHOLDERS

The success of the strategy depends on the engagement of a variety of stakeholders, whose roles are clearly defined in the strategy. The list includes, but is not limited to, the Ministry of Labour, National Steering Committee members, the Child Labour Unit, the General Confederation of Lebanese Workers (CGTL), the Association of Lebanese Industrialists (ALI), the civil society, the religious leaders, the political parties, the students, the International Labour Organization, the families of child labourers, child labourers, Members of Parliament, local authorities such as mayors (and makhateers), governors, municipalities, and other government bodies such as the National Employment Office, teachers and the National Social Security Fund (NSSF).

MEASURING RESULTS

The media sub-committee will present a quarterly progress report to the NSC outlining the performance of the plan against specific, measurable and time bound indicators. Moreover, final evaluation report will be conducted by an external independent consultant.

I. Background

Whilst child labour takes many forms, a priority is to eliminate, without delay, the worst forms of child labour as defined by Article 3 of ILO Convention No. 182 concerning the prohibition and immediate action for the elimination of the worst forms of child labour:

- (a) All forms of slavery or practices similar to slavery, such as the sale and trafficking of children, debt bondage and serfdom and forced or compulsory labour, including forced or compulsory recruitment of children for use in armed conflict;
- (b) The use, procuring or offering of a child for prostitution, for the production of pornography or for pornographic performances;
- (c) The use, procuring or offering of a child for illicit activities, in particular for the production and trafficking of drugs as defined in the relevant international treaties;
- (d) Work which, by its nature or the circumstances in which it is carried out, is likely to harm the health, safety or morals of children.

The worst forms of child labour (WFCL) identified in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) are to be eliminated immediately and unconditionally in any country in which they exist. Those types referred to in paragraph (d) may vary from one country to another, exposing children to different hazardous circumstances, and they are known as conditional forms of child labour.<sup>1</sup> These types of labour and their accompanying conditions are usually defined by the relevant parties at the national level such as the Ministry of Labour, workers' and employers' organizations in coordination with civil society organizations. For example, in Lebanon, there are no children working in mines or in steel plants but there are children working in industrial establishments and agriculture. It is therefore important to define the Lebanese types of WFCL.

Decree No. 8987, endorsed by the Lebanese Government and signed by the President of the Republic in September 2012, prohibits the employment of children under the age of 18 and states that all types of work that may harm the health, safety or morals of children are completely prohibited in Lebanon (Annex 1). It also defines a new list of the most hazardous types of work (in conformity with Paragraph (d) of C.182). The Decree was informed by a study carried out by the Ministry of Labour and the American University of Beirut (Public Health Department) with the technical and financial support of the ILO's International Programme for the Elimination of Child Labour (IPEC).

II. Introduction

The National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst forms of child Labour by 2016 was launched by the President of the Republic General Michel Suleiman on 7 November 2013, in the presence of concerned ministers, MPs, representatives from concerned embassies, and many political, economic, social and religious personalities. At the same time the NAP was adopted by the Government of Lebanon. Eliminate the Worst Forms of Child Labour in Lebanon by 2016, The Plan was developed by the National Steering Committee Against Child Labour (NSC) under the stewardship of the Ministry of Labour and with the collaboration of the Child Labour unit in Lebanon, in cooperation with ILO – IPEC, Regional Office for the Arab States. It was designated to be implemented by 2016 which coincides with the deadline set by the second ILO Global Report on Child Labour<sup>2</sup>.

The NAP focuses on 11 strategic areas for the elimination of child labour: legislation and law enforcement, free and compulsory education, integration into the education system, economic opportunities for parents and youth of working age, capacity building, development services centres, local authorities, local community and community leaders, prevention, withdrawal and rehabilitation.

This communication strategy accompanies the implementation of the National Action Plan over a three-year period (2014-2016). It outlines the key activities to be undertaken in order to effectively inform the public and communicate with national stakeholders on the objectives and activities of the NAP, and it identifies the audiences and stakeholders it wishes to engage with.

The Strategy is informed by two workshops facilitated by an independent communication consultant commissioned by the International Labour Organization and the Child Labour Unit at the Ministry of Labour. The first workshop was held over two consecutive days in October 2012 with members of the NSC and the second also over two days (1 March and 7 June 2013) with national media representatives, in order to incorporate their comments.

After a desk review of national and international documents relating to the WFCL, including the National Action Plan, the Ministry of Labour and the ILO presented a draft awareness raising strategy to the NSC and other stakeholders for in-depth discussion and national endorsement.

Chaired by the Minister of Labour, the Committee is composed of representatives from Government (in particular the Ministries of Social Affairs, Education, Interior and Municipalities, Justice, Health and Agriculture), employer and worker organizations, and civil society. As such it represents the main national stakeholders engaged in efforts to combat child labour in Lebanon. All members of the Committee had the opportunity to express their views before receiving the final draft strategy for final comments and for adopting the strategy at the national level.

<sup>2</sup> ILO: The end of child labour: Within reach, REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL, Global Report under the follow-up to the ILO Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work, Report I (B), INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE, 95th Session, Geneva, 2006

STRUCTURE OF THE NSC (AS PER DECREE 5137):

Chair	Minister of Labour
Vice chairman	Director General of the Ministry of Labour
Members	Representatives from National Employment Office, National Social Security Fund, Ministry of Social Affairs, Ministry of Health, Ministry of Justice, Ministry of Agriculture, Ministry of Education and Higher Education, Ministry of Interior and Municipalities, General Confederation of Lebanese Workers, Association of Lebanese Industrialists, three members from civil society organizations concerned with child labour issues (appointed by Ministry of Labour), and two members from Ministry of Labour (one as a rapporteur).

A media sub-committee of the NSC is responsible for the implementation of the awareness raising strategy, with the assistance of a communication consultant responsible for overall coordination and technical oversight of its implementation. The media sub-committee will also monitor the implementation of the campaign and submit quarterly reports to the NSC on its progress.

Support will be provided by the Government of Lebanon (including the Ministry of Labour, the Ministry of Information, and the National Audiovisual Media Council), the International Labour Organization, the private sector, worker representatives and civil society organizations.

The Strategy is an internal document that guides the communication and information work of the NSC but copies are available to the public upon request.

As several of the activities outlined herein require collaboration with external partners, an adjusted implementation plan will be produced during the first 6 months once their feasibility has been assessed and availability of funds has been determined.

This document is to be considered a work in progress, and is likely to evolve in view of the progress of the National Action Plan.

National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour by 2016 Strategic Interventions: Objectives & Outcomes

Strategic Area	Objective	Outcome
Legislation and Law Enforcement	By the end of 2015, all Lebanese legislation is compatible with the international Conventions and Protocols regarding child rights and is ready to be implemented.	All existing legislation concerning child labour is reviewed, new laws are formulated and prepared, and mechanisms are established for their application, ensuring addition of a provision related to mandatory implementation.
Free and compulsory education	By the end of 2016, all children of the age of primary education benefit from their right to free and compulsory education as per the National Education Strategy 2010.	By the end of 2014, the regulatory decrees for free and compulsory education are endorsed. By the end of 2014, the school support programme is being designed and sanctioned in accordance with legal requirements. By the end of 2015, the quality of services provided by schools has improved.
Integration into the education system	By the start of 2016, all children withdrawn from the worst forms of child labour are reintegrated into the educational system.	Schooling support is provided to all children in need by mid-2015. School reintegration is provided for all school drop-outs by end 2015.
Economic opportunities for parents and youth of working age	Parents of children withdrawn from the worst forms of child labour and youth of working age obtain adequate jobs that enable them to improve their economic and social conditions.	Accelerated vocational training and formal education is provided for all interested children by end 2015. The economic conditions of families whose children have been withdrawn from the worst forms of child labour are improved.

Strategic Area	Objective	Outcome
Capacity Building	By end 2015, society is aware of, accepts responsibility for, and contributes to the elimination of the worst forms of child labour in Lebanon.	By end 2014, studies have been conducted and documentation compiled for determining the roles of the actors involved in eliminating the worst forms of child labour. By end 2014, approximately 5000 individuals have been trained from the private and public sectors and from civil society in 28 districts.
Development Services Centres	By end 2016, the worst forms of child labour in the geographical areas of each development services centre are eliminated.	By end 2014, the capacity of all stakeholders has been built in social safety nets, networks, coordination and advocacy. Raise awareness of the staff at the Development Services Centres on the problem of child labour. Raise awareness amongst parents of the services provided by the centres and the seriousness of the problem of child labour. Referral mechanisms are developed, through forging partnerships between the Development Services Centres and CSOs located in same geographical area, in order to guide the working children towards school support programmes in partnership with the Ministry of Education, and to guide their parents towards support programmes for parents of working children.
Local authorities	By end 2016, local authorities are aware of and contributing to the elimination of the worst forms of child labour.	Governors and mayors are more aware of and are playing an active role in the elimination of the worst forms of child labour. Heads of the municipalities and unions of municipalities and mayors are more aware of and are playing an active role in combating the worst forms of child labour.

Strategic Area	Objective	Outcome
Local community and community leaders	By end 2016, NGOs and local communities become aware of and are effective in eliminating the worst forms of child labour in Lebanon.	Task forces, including members of civil society associations, workers' and employers' organizations, university students, teachers in schools and technical/vocational institutes, are trained in all Lebanese regions. Awareness is raised through commercial and recreational centres and public places and through social networks. Awareness campaigns are carried out through employers and labour unions and offices of the National Social Security Fund. Awareness is raised on child labour and its worst forms among and through religious leaders.
Prevention	By end 2015, Lebanese society acquires solid and coherent protection mechanisms that are able to prevent children from engaging in the worst forms of child labour.	A specialized juvenile police unit is formed within the Internal Security Forces (ISF) to prevent the engagement of children in the worst forms of child labour. Capacity of schools is increased (students, teaching staff and school administration, including parents' committees) on preventing children from being drawn into the worst forms of child labour. The capacities of concerned NGOs are strengthened in protecting children from the worst forms of child labour. Capacity and role of labour inspection authorities and of the National Employment Agency is activated and its capacity strengthened in the area of preventing the worst forms of child labour.

Withdrawal	By end 2016, all children exposed to the worst forms of child labour have been withdrawn.	Geographical localities that included the largest numbers of children exposed to the worst forms of child labour are determined. Future aspirations of children withdrawn from the worst forms of child labour are acknowledged. Communities are established to aid coordination between labour associations, employers' organizations, civil society, municipalities and unions of municipalities, the International Security Forces and inspectors from the Ministry of Labour.
Rehabilitation	By end 2016, all children who have been withdrawn from the worst forms of child labour have been rehabilitated in professional rehabilitation centres established in various Lebanese regions, by mid-2014, to provide psychological, health and social services.	Social rehabilitation of all children withdrawn from the worst forms of child labour has been achieved. Medical rehabilitation of all children withdrawn from the worst forms of child labour has been achieved. Psychological rehabilitation of all children withdrawn from the worst forms of child labour has been achieved.

III. National Awareness Raising Strategy Objectives

The overall goal of the Awareness Raising Strategy is to support the National Action Plan's efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labour in Lebanon by 2016. It seeks to achieve four objectives that were set after a series of consultations and workshops with various stakeholders, including Lebanese media representatives.

Overall, the Strategy seeks to provide visibility for the work of the NAP, promote adherence to its values, lobby for institutional and legislative change and mobilize support for the attainment of its goals by pursuing the following objectives:

1. To increase public awareness of the objectives and activities of the National Action Plan
2. To promote adherence to Decree 8987 at the local and regional levels
3. To encourage policy change to support the NAP in line with international standards
4. To mobilize national stakeholders to act to eliminate the WFCL

IV. Stakeholders

The success of the campaign depends on the participation, performance and coordination of many stakeholders, including members of the NSC and other national partners.

As chair of the National Steering Committee Against Child Labour and the Government's Executive branch with a continuous role in protecting children from exploitation in the workplace, the Ministry of Labour plays a multifaceted role that combines standard-setting with awareness-raising, mobilization and enforcement. The Ministry will lead field action and develop information, education and communication materials; develop guidelines on the implementation of Decree 8987; disseminate results of inspection of compliance with labour laws; conduct a mapping of hotspots on WFCL in Lebanon; manage a WFCL hotline, and lead several other initiatives.

In addition to their participation in the work of the NSC, trade unions, employer representatives and civil society organizations can leverage their own channels in support of the Strategy.

The General Confederation of Lebanese Workers (CGTL) has formed a central unit and sub-units in districts across Lebanon, mobilized 450 volunteers to combat child labour, conducted awareness raising sessions for parents and children, lobbied parliament to waive school fees and include provisions on WFCL in a recent decree on occupational safety and health, and provided stationary and schoolbooks to disadvantaged children. CGTL's network of activists and members, in particular in the education sector, will help to disseminate NAP's key messages across the country and raise awareness on the worst forms of child labour. Communication and training products developed by the NAP's media sub-committee will be shared with the CGTL membership on a regular basis, as well as ILO products such as SCREAM (Supporting Children's Rights through Education, the Arts and the Media), the Teacher's Information Kit and the Guide developed about Decree 8987).

With a membership of over 700, the Association of Lebanese Industrialists can support the NAP by disseminating its key messages to some of Lebanon's most influential employers, and encouraging them declare their commitment to combatting WFCL and to seek certification such as the SA8000 on Social Accountability. Lebanese employers can also provide financial support to efforts to combat the WFCL as part of their corporate social responsibility programmes. Outreach to employers who are not represented in employer organizations, such as those in the informal sector, is also critical, as small Lebanese businesses are more likely to employ child labourers and many children are seasonal workers in agriculture.

In addition to their substantive contribution to the Strategy through the National Steering Committee, civil society<sup>3</sup> actors can mobilize widespread support for the objectives of the NAP by disseminating its key messages and promoting its activities through their networks. This includes religious leaders, political parties, student groups, charities and other institutions.

<sup>3</sup> Defined as all organizations and associations that exist outside of the state and the market. See <http://carnegieendowment.org/pdf/CivilSociety.pdf>

Building on the extensive experience of its International Programme for the Elimination of Child Labour in over 92 countries, the International Labour Organization supports the efforts of the NSC through technical advisory services, sharing best practices, training constituents and offering a range of tools that have been tried and tested elsewhere – such as SCREAM (Supporting Children’s Rights through Education, the Arts and the Media) and the IPEC Teacher’s Information Kit – this includes support to the NAP’s communication plan. The ILO also leads a global Red Card to Child Labour campaign that can be adapted to Lebanon.

Most of the decisions to expose children to WFCL are taken within the family circle. Parents have an important role to play in preventing their children from becoming child labourers, and in helping to withdraw them from hazardous work. Engaging with the families of child labourers is therefore critical to the success of the National Action Plan. Helping parents to access decent jobs and support services is vital. Sometimes it is also important to convince them of the benefits of educating their children, as well as to inform them of channels of assistance that they can access.

Child labourers must be made aware of their rights and opportunities, and become empowered to seek protection and benefit from the support available to them through the National Action Plan.

Members of Parliament have the mandate to enact laws that can better protect children from the worst forms of child labour. The National Action Plan will seek to engage them through parliamentary committees, and the production of a set of awareness raising products that expound the importance of legislating to enable Lebanon to meet its international obligations to protect children from WFCL.

Local authorities such as mayors (and makhateers), governors, municipalities, and other government bodies such as the National Employment Office are active NAP partners, assisting in the reintegration of child labourers into the education system, promoting compliance with Decree 8987 by local businesses and communities, and offering support services to child labourers and their families. They also represent an important distribution network for key messages on the WFCL.

Teachers can help to spot (actual and potential) school dropouts early on and act to reintegrate child labourers into the education system. By integrating awareness raising materials into their curricula, they can help to reach out to children and their families.

National Social Security Fund (NSSF) has a legal role to oversee the labour market, through conducting labour inspections and enforcing laws relating to the minimum age of work. It offers an important distribution network through its offices across the country and its labour inspectors, as well as its publications.

Stakeholder	Position on WFCL	Desired change/ action
Ministry of Labour	As chair of the NSC and host to a Child Labour Unit, the MOL is leading efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labour in Lebanon by 2016.	Effectively communicate on the roll out of the National Action Plan through strategic positioning and clear, consistent, and coherent messaging.
Trade Unions	The General Confederation of Lebanese Workers supports the elimination of the worst forms of child labour, but lacks the resources and capacity to advocate for their rights. GCTL have a vast distribution and outreach network.	Trade unions empowered to advocate for children’s rights and to speak up against the worst forms of child labour in Lebanon.
Employers	Employers are often unaware of the fundamental rights of children, in particular with relation to the worst forms of child labour. Association of Lebanese Industrialists have membership of over 700.	Employers are aware of and committed to the fundamental rights of children, in line with international standards and Decree 8987 prohibiting the worst forms of child labour in Lebanon. They are engaged in socio-economic and educational activities for working children through the development of a Corporate Social Responsibility Programme.
International Labour Organization	Longstanding partner of the MOL, trade unions and employers in the fight against WFCL. Provides technical advisory services, shares best practices, and trains constituents.	Supports the development, implementation and evaluation of the NAP communication strategy.  Integrates NAP into global advocacy efforts to combat child labour led by IPEC (e.g. Red Card Against Child Labour)
Child labourers	Child labourers are aware of the difficulties they face – but may lack awareness of their fundamental rights and of the channels of assistance they can tap into.	Child labourers aware of their fundamental rights and empowered to seek protection and support and to speak up for their rights.
Families of child labourers	Parents of child labourers usually lack the means to support their children to remain in education and are often unaware of the hazardous conditions in which their children work. They also lack access to support mechanisms to break the cycle of poverty.	Families of child labourers are aware of the hazards their children face at work and are convinced of the value of full time education.  Families know how to access support for their children’s socio-economic and educational rights.

Stakeholder	Position on WFCL	Desired change/ action
Civil Society	Civil society actors play an important role in combatting child labour, but their work is largely uncoordinated.	Civil society actors understand, support and advocate for NAP objectives, and form regional coordination platforms.
Lawmakers	Lawmakers are aware of the problem of child labour in Lebanon, and recently passed Decree 8987 prohibiting its worst forms.	Lawmakers are convinced of the importance of policy change to combat the WFCL and enacting relevant laws.
Local government	Local authorities have significant outreach and information sharing capacity.	Local authorities understand, support and advocate for NAP objectives.
Religious leaders	The religious establishment remains influential in Lebanon, and religious leaders can effectively reach out to their followers on the issue of WFCL.	Religious leaders understand, support and advocate for NAP objectives, linking the elimination of WFCL to religious values through public sermons, media outlets and other channels of communication.
National Social Security Fund	Conducts labour inspections and enforces laws relating to the minimum age of work, and has a strong distribution network through offices, labour inspectors and publications.	NSSF staff understand, support and advocate for NAP objectives, in particular those relating to the social protection floor.

V. Key Messages

The success of the National Action Plan hinges on the public's improved understanding of the worst forms of child labour and of the rights of children to protection and education more broadly.

In line with the objectives of the National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour, the Awareness Raising Strategy seeks to highlight a core set of targeted messages that emphasize the strengthening of legal and institutional frameworks, access to education, the role of the private sector, and support to child labourers and their families.

The NAP seeks to galvanize stakeholder support for its objectives by presenting a consistent and coherent set of messages that are communicated through a variety of channels.

The overall message to be conveyed by the NAP is that “the worst forms of child labour must be eliminated by 2016”. This then branches out into five main points and their relevant supporting messages that are tailored to specific audiences:

1. We must bring national laws in line with international standards, and enforce new laws (targets: the government, policymakers, civil society, trade unions)
2. Child labourers have a right to educational support and training (targets: child labourers and their families, employers and educators)
3. Combating the WFCL is our collective responsibility (targets: the government, trade unions, civil society, educators, parents, employers, local and regional authorities, university students, etc.)
4. Combating child labour makes good business sense (targets: employers)
5. Government supports children who are at risk or working and their families (targets: child labourers and their families to inform them of available services and inspires public confidence in the NAP)

Building on the strengths of the multiple stakeholders involved in the National Action Plan, the Awareness Raising Strategy outlines a series of time bound and measurable activities to achieve its stated objectives.

Over a 24-month period, the media sub-committee of the National Committee will seek to:

- (5) Increase public awareness and support for the National Action Plan by promoting a clear, consistent and coherent communication campaign, producing and disseminating public information materials, making information on the WFCL accessible on the website of the Child Labour Unit at the Ministry of Labour and through social networks, ensure that the public is kept informed of the progress of the NAP, and engaging with the media on a regular basis, and linking the campaign to national days.
- (6) Promote adherence to Decree 8987/2012 at the local and regional levels by informing and enabling local and regional authorities, educators, relevant Ministries and the National Social Security Fund to play their part.
- (7) Encourage policy change by lobbying lawmakers and political parties.
- (8) Mobilize national stakeholders to combat WFCL, including the private sector, trade unions, civil society organizations, the religious establishment and university students.

After the launch of the National Action Plan, the media sub-committee will be formed by a decision of the Minister of Labour in his capacity as head of the NSC, in consultation with other members, constituting up to five members of the NSC. Its overall activities will be managed and coordinated by a communications expert to be appointed by the Committee in coordination with the Unit for Combatting Child Labour at the Ministry of Labour during the first quarter of 2014.

After engaging with various stakeholders and potential donors, the media sub-committee will develop a detailed implementation; monitoring and evaluation plan including a full budget and submit it to the National Committee for approval, in coordination and with the collaboration of the Unit for Combatting Child Labour at the Ministry of Labour.

Objective 1: To increase public awareness of and support for the National Action Plan
Outcome 1.1	The NAP campaign against the WFCL is perceived as clear, coherent and consistent.

<sup>4</sup> SA8000 is an auditable certification standard that encourages organizations to develop, maintain, and apply socially acceptable practices in the workplace. It is based on the principles of international human rights norms as described in International Labour Organization conventions, the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. It measures the performance of companies in eight areas important to social accountability in the workplace: Child Labour, Forced and Compulsory Labour, Health and Safety, Freedom of Association and Right to Collective Bargaining, Discrimination, Working Hours, and Remuneration.

VII. Measuring Results

The Communication Strategy's implementation plan will detail specific activities under each objective per outcome, their deadline for completion, the designated responsible and supporting institutions, and indicators of success.

The media sub-committee will present a quarterly progress report to the National Steering Committee Against Child Labour outlining the performance of the communications plan against these specific, measurable and time bound indicators. This will enable the Committee monitor the progress of the media-subcommittee throughout the year.

A final evaluation report of the communication strategy will be conducted by an external independent consultant, with ILO support, and submitted to the National Steering Committee Against Child Labour.

Once implemented, the National Action Plan for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour 2014-2016 is expected to go a long way towards improving child protection in Lebanon. This awareness raising strategy contributes to all of its specific objectives, in particular Objective I (Lebanese legislation is compatible with international Conventions and Protocols regarding child rights and ready to be implemented) Objective V (Society accepts responsibility for, and contributes to the elimination of WFCL) and Objective VII (NGOs and local communities become aware of and are effective in eliminating WFCL).

As with the NAP, the success of the strategy depends on the levels of commitment and effective cooperation of its many stakeholders. The critical question of resource allocation remains to be settled. Some of these activities require funding whilst others require in-kind support. Both these forms may be mobilized from a wide spectrum of governmental and non-governmental sources in addition to national and international donors. The private sector can have an important role to play in this regard.

Six weeks after the launch of the NAP, the following steps are to be taken:

- Formation of the media sub-committee
- Recruitment of the communication consultant
- Engagement with stakeholders to determine funding sources
- Development of prioritised implementation plan with a detailed budget and execution timeline
- Launch of the NAP branding competition
