Global employment trends for youth, 2012

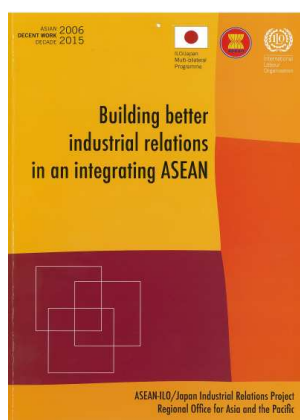

Youth in developing economies face strong structural barriers in their search for decent work. The share of paid employment in total employment in much of the developing work is low, and a high share of youth is likely to engage in unpaid family work supporting (informal) family businesses or farms.

The school-to-work transition may also include unemployment spells or periods of temporary or casual employment if such opportunities arise while the final station is likely to be own-account work.

INDIGENOUS AND TRIBAL PEOPLES

Comparative analysis on the ILO Indigenous and Tribal Peoples Convention No. 169, UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP), and Indigenous Peoples' Rights Act (IPRA) of the Philippines

In recognition, promotion, and protection of the rights of indigenous cultural communities and indigenous peoples (ICCs/IPs), the Philippines has enacted the Indigenous Peoples' Rights Act of 1997 (IPRA).

A comparative analysis of ILO Convention No. 169, UNDRIP, and IPRA shows that the latter instrument has drawn heavily from the standards set in ILO Convention No. 169 while UNDRIP being the latest instruments, further articulates with emphasis on the roles of the United Nations and international cooperation.
