ILO global estimates on international migrant workers: Results and Methodology. Second edition

In this report, the term "international migrants" refers to persons who are foreign-born (or foreign citizens when place-of-birth information is not available), while the term "migrants of working age (15 years of age and over)" is a subset of international migrants.

Robots worldwide: The impact of automation on employment and trade

The impact of robots on employment and trade is a highly discussed topic in the academic and public debates. There are concerns that automation may threaten jobs in emerging countries given the erosion of the labour cost advantage. We provide evidence on the effects of robots on worldwide employment, including emerging economies. Robots turn out to have a statistically significant negative impact on worldwide employment.

Game changers: Women and the future of work in Asia and the Pacific

The report highlights practical and impactful measures for women and men alike – to achieve gender equality and build a future of work that upholds the bold aspirations, dynamism and rich culture of this region and its peoples. To accelerate progress, we need more strategic actions, partnerships and champions within governments, workers' and employers' organizations, as well as other stakeholders across the region.
