Working conditions in a global perspective

This report provides a comparative analysis of job quality covering approximately 1.2 billion of the world's workers in the EU28, China, the Republic of Korea, Turkey, the United States (US), Spanish-speaking Central America (Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and Panama), Argentina, Chile and Uruguay. Good working conditions contribute to the well-being of workers and the success of enterprises.

The future of work in the health sector

This paper explores how changing technology, demographics and other drivers will change work in the health care sector. Such changes will provide opportunities and pose challenges to governments, employers and workers in the field.

It provides a sectoral perspective on the future of work regarding both the challenges and opportunities facing the health services sector.

Working Paper No. 318

Social dialogue
in the public service in selected countries of the European Union

Social dialogue in the public service in selected countries of the European Union

The paper aims to analyze the regulation and practice of social dialogue in the public service at the European Union (EU) level and within a group of EU countries, with a focus on the forms of social dialogue other than collective bargaining and their evolution after the onset of the 2008 economic crisis. Plan. Social dialogue, including collective bargaining, is one of the core enabling principles of the ILO's decent work agenda. It should form part and parcel of the regulation of labour relations in the public sector.

Global supply chains and intangible assets in the automotive and aeronautical industries

The paper documents the deep transformations in major French automotive and aeronautical TNCs' strategies – in particular in the management of their R&D – in relation with the appeal of IA for financial investors. It thus highlights a further dimension of the relation between finance and production to the ones more commonly addressed by the literature on 'financialisation'.
