Universal social protection for human dignity, social justice and sustainable development

This General Survey is intended to provide guidance to all stakeholders involved in the development of social protection systems at country level, notably: governments, employers' and workers' organizations, representatives of other persons concerned, international organizations and development partners. It is hoped that the practices and recommendations put forward in this Survey will help countries to achieve progress towards meeting the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) by 2030, to ensure that no one is left behind.

Ending violence and harassment in the world of work. Report V(1)

The report contained a questionnaire and was transmitted to member States in May 2017. Governments were invited to send their replies by 22 September 2017, after consultation with the most representative organizations of employers and workers. Based on the replies received, the Office prepared a second report on the item 4 which was thereafter communicated to member States.

Ending violence and harassment in the world of work. Report V(2A)

Report V(2) is published in two volumes. The report has been prepared on the basis of replies received from governments and employers' and workers' organizations, and contains the essential points of their observations. Due to a logistical problem, a few replies that were sent within the deadline of 8 November 2018 have not been included in the present report. In order to avoid delaying the publication of the report, the Office will issue an Addendum with those replies.

Needs and gaps assessment of labour market information system (LMIS) and migrant workers' management information systems (MWIMS)

As Bangladesh is fast developing into a middle income country, the contribution of overseas employment and remittances to the country's economy has gained prominence in its overall strategy, especially through the development of a more pro-active and migrant worker- oriented approach to management.
