Skills shortages in EU

Occupations for which there are skill shortages o higher skill – ICT and STEM professionals, medical doctors, nurses, midwives, teachers
  o intermediate skill – cooks, welders and truck drivers

Reasons for shortage o Insufficient supply of graduates
  o Rapid technical advancements o Less enrollments to study, STEM with high entry requirements and high dropout rates
  o Low participation of women in STEM

Country-specific shortages
  o Healthcare  Bulgaria, Hungary and Slovakia (due to emigration); Denmark, Croatia, Latvia and Austria (due to retention challenges)
  o Legal professionals  Estonia and France
  o Financial analysts  Ireland, UK, Hungary and Luxembourg

Some Challenges

- Movement of people is affected by lack of mutual recognition of qualifications and skills
  - India and EU have not been able to conclude Mutual Recognition Agreements (MRAs) of qualifications
  - Gaps in implementation of EU’s Services Directive and Directive 2005/36/EC on recognition of professional qualifications

- In 2005, EC developed a set of 11 common basic principles (CBPs) for mainstreaming integration measures

- In 2011, a review of CBPs highlighted several challenges regarding integration of migrants
  - low levels of employment among migrants, especially migrant women
  - rising levels of unemployment and high levels of over-qualification of migrants compared to the jobs they do
  - gaps in educational attainment
  - increasing risk of social exclusion of migrants
  - public concerns with the lack of integration of migrants Policy engagement so far

• India-EU Common Agenda for Migration and Mobility (CAMM) endorsed at India-EU Summit (30 March 2016)

• Several bilateral and multilateral agreements (including trade, social security, labour mobility) have been signed between India and EU (and Member States) to facilitate mobility

• Under GATS, services can be traded internationally in four different ways
  o Mode 1: Cross-border supply (e.g. banking services transmitted via telecommunications or mail)
  o Mode 2: Consumption abroad (e.g. tourist or patient)
  o Mode 3: Commercial presence (e.g. domestic subsidiaries of foreign insurance companies or hotel chains)
  o Mode 4: Presence of natural persons (e.g. students, doctors, teachers, etc.)
