ILO Workshop on the Validation of Informal and Non-formal Learning for Refugees

The workshop “Validation of Informal and Non-formal Learning for Refugees” was held in Ankara on 17 May 2017 under the Project “Improving Labour Market Integration of Syrian Refugees and Host Communities in Turkey” implemented by the ILO Office for Turkey. The event was organized jointly by ILO Office, European Training Foundation, and European Bank for Reconstruction and Development. Including representatives from the Ministry of Labour and Social Security, Vocational Qualifications Authority, General Directorate of Lifelong Learning, authorized certification bodies, workers’ and employers’ organizations, and United Nations agencies, participants in the workshop found the opportunity to discuss the issue of assessment and certification of earlier qualifications and learning of Syrians now under temporary protection within the framework of national occupational standards.

and decent work for Syrian refugees was becoming increasingly important, and pointed out to the activities of the ILO Office in contributing to refugees’ access to sources of income and labour market, formal and decent jobs. Mr. Özcan said “an important component in this contribution is to ensure the recognition of competencies acquired earlier but not documented as well as skills gained in the process in Turkey through vocational training or working within the framework of competencies. This step is also important in terms of strengthening links between training and employment and facilitating transition to working life.”

In her presentation, Prof. Dr. Füsun Akkök, ILO’s national expert, presented detailed information concerning the validation of non-formal and informal learning for refugees as well as phases and methodology in the process of validation adopted in building a model. Prof. Akkök pointed out that such a large population fleeing war was mostly composed of young persons that should be included in the labour force. To place these people who left behind their diplomas and other certificates in better jobs, their earlier learning must be validated and certified. This showed that Turkey was developing within a system, yet but there was no work initiated to include Syrians in the system. Consequently, the workshop that brought all relevant parties together and laid the ground for communication, cooperation and coordination was crucially important in regard to the kind of model to be adopted by the country.

Following the ILO national expert’s presentation there was a panel discussion on “Validation of Informal and Non-formal Learning for Refugees in Turkey: National and International Perspectives”. Moderated by Mr. Nicholas Grisewood, ILO’s senior technical specialist in the field of crisis migration, the panellists were Mr. Osman Seçkin Akbıyık from the Vocational Qualifications Authority; Ms. Mirjam de Jong, qualification systems specialist of the European Training Foundation; Mr. Andy Gibbs, international specialist from the European Training Foundation and ILO’s national expert Prof. Dr. Füsun Akkök.

In his opening speech, Mr. Numan Özcan, Director of ILO Office for Turkey, stressed that in addition to humanitarian assistance, providing opportunities of subsistence

The panel discussion was organized under the project implemented by the ILO Office for Turkey in cooperation with the Turkish Employment Agency (İŞKUR) and with funding from the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (SIDA). The “Action Plan for Women’s Employment”, the first ever in Turkey, was developed to promote women’s employment in Turkey and to support İŞKUR’s activities in this field. "We started this training as 25 timid women. Then we got to know ourselves better, learned how to turn criticism into opportunity. Now, for example, there is this rising tendency for fast food, but this trend also leaves behind a vacuum of home-made food, which could well be a new area for entrepreneurship."

Panellists stated that many women would take part in working life and those who have left would return in case they were relieved from the burden of child and elderly care.

The panel discussion dealt mainly with problems specific to women's employment in Bursa. In the questions and answers part of the event, participants raised several issues including promotion by such places as neighbourhood headmen and health centers to have İŞKUR services known more widely by local women and the need for further support to women who had to work home-based for not being able to work out of home for several reasons.

The audience included Syrian refugees and Turkish citizens who attended the vocational and technical training programmes implemented at Şanlıurfa Union of the Chambers of Tradesmen and Craftsmen (ŞESOB) and at Parmaksız and Ahmet Yesevi Multi-purpose Community Centres.

Panellists highlighted the negative effects on children of conflicts and disasters, discussed mitigation measures adopted and initiatives taken to empower parents in particular. They underlined that children should be protected from child labour in all circumstances.

In the same vein, a seminar was organized on June 15th jointly by the ILO Office for Turkey, Hatay Union of the Chambers of Tradesmen and Craftsmen (HESOB) and Eastern Mediterranean Development Agency (DOĞAKA).

Attended by representatives from public institutions and civil society organizations, the opening remarks of the seminar were delivered by Mr. Abdulkadir Teksözoğlu, HESOB President; Mr. Onur Yıldız, DOĞAKA Secretary General and Mr. Hikmet Çinçin, Executive Director of Antakya Chamber of Industry and Commerce. The speakers in the seminar were Mr. İbrahim Demircan, Head of the Department of Employment Policies in the Ministry of Labour and Social Security; Ms. Duygu Savur Tannverdi, ILO Field Coordinator and Mr. Şahin Serim, an ILO Consultant. Topics included the effects of child labour in general and in situations of conflict and disaster in particular, efforts to eliminate child labour, importance of inter-agency cooperation in combating child labour, relevant national legislation, and current arrangements on the issue.

Further, the ILO Office for Turkey organized informative seminars for trainees in the vocational and technical training held at Adana Foundation for Supporting Vocational Training and Small Industry (MEKSA) and Mersin Public Education Centre. The trainees were informed, in the context of conflict and disaster, on the negative consequences of child labour and the importance of education as one of the most effective tools in combating this phenomenon.

The General Directorate of Labour of the Ministry of Labour and Social Security organized a panel discussion in Gaziantep on June 12th on “National Programme on Combating Child Labour”. The participants included representatives from the Ministries of National Education, Interior, Family and Social Policies, Youth and Sports, and the ILO Office for Turkey. Discussions in the panel focused on the strategy and actions for eliminating child labour in the context of the National Programme 2017-2023.

* Child labour is an important global issue which requires urgent response. To draw attention to the issue, the International Labour Organization (ILO) declared June 12th as the World Day against Child Labour. The World Day leads a global campaign each year since 2002 and this year’s World Day focuses on the effects of conflicts and disasters on child labour with the theme “Protecting Children from Child Labour in Conflicts and Disasters”. In the regional context, the civil war in Syria created the largest displacement in human history, making Turkey the leading haven for the largest refugee population in the world hosting more than 3 million displaced Syrians, almost half being children. The effects of the Syrian crisis spread over economic and social spheres, particularly in the form of discontinued education and concomitant child labour. It is estimated for the school year 2016-2017 that 41% of Syrian children at school age are out of school (MoNE). This poses a significant risk in terms of child labour.
ILO supports employability of Syrian refugees and host communities through women’s cooperatives in Mardin and Harran

The ILO Office for Turkey is implementing the project “Promoting Decent Work Opportunities for Syrian Refugees and Host Communities in Turkey” in order to support the livelihoods opportunities for host communities and Syrian refugees through cooperatives in Mardin and Harran district of Şanlıurfa. For this purpose, a field visit was paid by the ILO project staff to observe presently active and prospective cooperatives in Mardin and Harran district of Şanlıurfa and to determine the channels of cooperation with the cooperatives affiliated with the GAP Regional Development Administration and Family Support Center within Harran Governorate. As a result of the field visit, it was decided to support women-intensive cooperatives in terms of capacity development, training, promotion, marketing and branding as a way of enhancing the livelihoods opportunities for both Syrian and local women.

Based on this decision, under the supervision of the ILO Office for Turkey, the Foundation for Support of Women’s Work’s (KEDV) is conducting activities on supporting existing women-intensive cooperatives in terms of capacity development, training in Mardin and on establishing a new women’s cooperative in Harran district of Şanlıurfa in the context of the training in the Family Support Center. Under the project, the ILO Office for Turkey and KEDV started activities for cooperatives by conducting focus group meetings to identify the needs for the establishment of a new women’s cooperative in Harran and to integrate Syrian women into Mardin women’s cooperatives. Turkish and Syrian women trainees in the Family Support Center in Harran were invited to focus group meetings to elicit their opinions and suggestions about the women’s cooperative to be established. Moreover, ILO and KEDV representatives met with the Turkish members of Mardin women’s cooperatives and trainees in the Multi-purpose Women Centers in Mardin to discuss the opportunities and challenges that could be faced while integrating Syrian women into the women’s cooperatives in Mardin, namely Mardin Women’s Multi-purpose Operation Cooperative and Umutyolu Women’s Cooperative.

After the focus group meetings, the needs analysis report was prepared by KEDV; a business plan was prepared for the work to be done in the forthcoming period and capacity development training was defined. The capacity building training will be held in Harran and Mardin in July-September 2017 within the framework of the defined business plan.

In the same vein, Şanlıurfa Governor Güngör Azim Tuna called on Syrian businesspersons for investment and said, “Provinces and regions compete for attracting investors. In this respect it is quite important for Şanlıurfa to explain well advantages offered to both domestic and foreign investors and extend necessary support to these investments. As governorate we are ready to do everything that falls upon us in this field.” During the opening of the meeting, all speakers representing organizations supporting the meeting expressed their expectations of investment in Şanlıurfa by Syrian businesspersons and readiness to help potential investors in their respective ventures.
Tripartite workshop on “Measuring Progress & OSH Indicators” organized by ILO in Ankara

Under the ongoing technical assistance project in Turkey on "Continued Improvement of Occupational Health and Safety (OSH) in Turkey through Compliance with International Labour Standards", a workshop was organized on 24 May 2017 bringing together the tripartite constituents, i.e. the Ministry of Labour and Social Security (MoLSS), Ministry of Health (MoH), employers’ and workers’ organizations to pursue the work on indicators initiated in 2016 for the preparation of National OSH Profile.

In the context of the project, a study was initiated on the development and use of indicators and benchmarks on progress on OSH in line with international standards and commitments. Article 5.2 (d) of the Promotional Framework for Occupational Safety and Health Convention, 2006 (No. 187) calls for the use of "objectives, targets and indicators of progress," and the Promotional Framework for Occupational Safety and Health Recommendation, 2006 (No. 197) which supplements Convention No. 187, urges that members prepare and regularly update a national profile summarizing the existing situation on OSH and the progress made towards achieving a safe and healthy working environment. In line with this recommendation, and through the ILO Project, a National OSH Profile for Turkey was recently finalized. In line with the recommended model for a National Profile, one chapter was devoted to measuring progress.

The workshop was organised to raise awareness on defining OSH indicators and measuring progress at national level. It was also reminded to the participants that defining measurable indicators would also serve the purpose of achieving the Sustainable Development Goal No. 8 on Decent Work and Economic Growth in particular Target 8: Protect labour rights and promote safe and secure working environments for all workers. Ms. Catherine Brakenhielm, an ILO Consultant, presented the study’s background in the workshop. Prof. Dr. Nazmi Bilir who was conducting the research delivered a presentation on the subject and requested inputs from the stakeholders for prioritizing the indicators.

Once inputs are received from the stakeholders, a report will be prepared by Prof. Bilir on OSH indicators including benefits to collect information, and the type, importance, recommendations for each indicator. The final report will be submitted to the Government for use.
